Graduate work:

"Tourist center in the town of Vorokhta (Ukraine)"

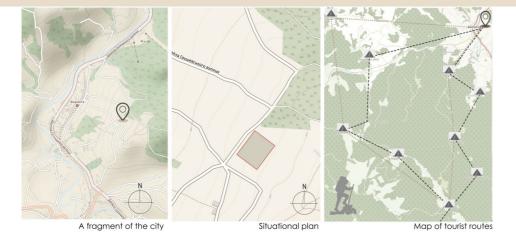

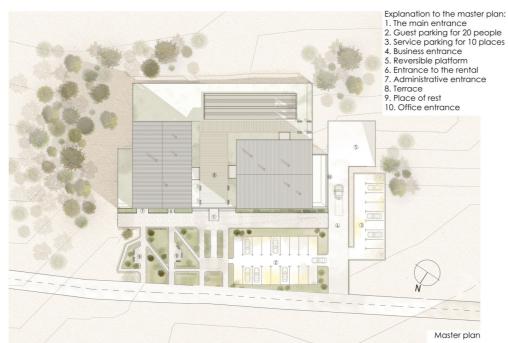

The main idea of the planning decision is interaction with the environment and architecture. Because the hotel building being designed is located in a rural environment, so there is the need to bring the building closer to the natural environment both visually and planned. For implementation of these goals was chosen horizontal scheme of functional zoning and vertical residential blocks that are dominant, but do not stand out from the environment.

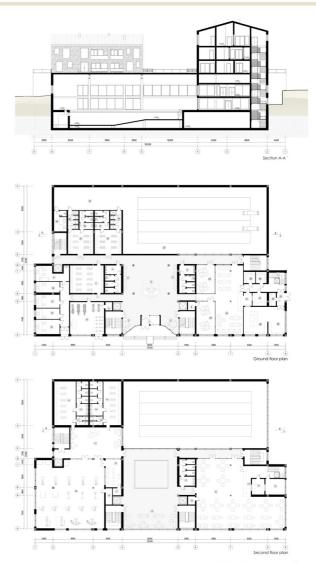

Graduate work:

"Tourist center in the town of Vorokhta (Ukraine)"

Relief was a significant factor in the design, as some of the rooms are almost deepened in relief, there was a problem with insolation. To prevent this, all technical rooms were in the depths of the main volume, and the main ones were adjacent to the facade. The second factor which played an important role in the design - there were mountain views. Therefore, when designing apartment blocks, an important factor was to deploy permanent residence rooms.

Hotel complex in the city of Odesa (Ukraine)

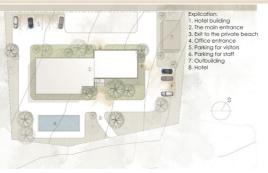

The object of design is a hotel in Odessa, located near the Black Sea coast.

Odesa is a developed resort and tourist city, and the lack of affordable housing for the period summer vacation is an urgent problem for guests of the city.

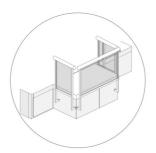

It should also be taken into account that the area of the plot provided for design was d ultimately limited, so the task was to solve the space in conditions of limited space.

Sunscreen panels from Reynaers

The fase solution was made thanks to the slats. Manufacturer - Reynaers. The peculiarity is that the facade has become two-layer. The outer part is the slats. Inner-glass. Plates that serve as the second layer of the facade are partially filtered sunlight. If there is a need to increase the flow of light into the cabinets, plates can be raised in the right part of the facade. This solution helps save a certain amount electricity, making the service station more environmentally friendly.

Nodal solutions

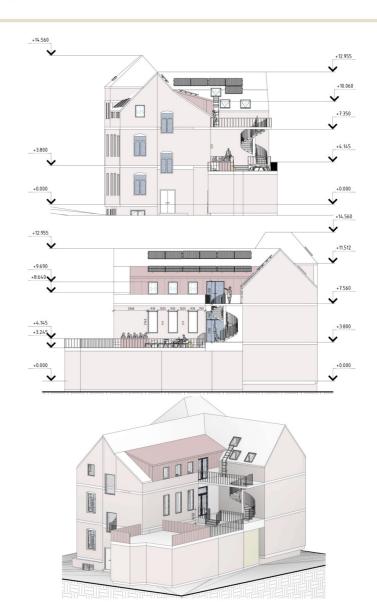

When designing the exterior of the building, the main task was to leave the existing brickwork. The roof was raised by a rebate roof. Window openings were dismantled.
